Offices and Agencies: London • Dubai UAE • Lisbon • Seville • New York • Sao Paulo • Tokyo • Warsaw

Stata	Microeconometrics using Stata by Dr. Melvyn Weeks 27-28 March 2012, Dubai, UAE 16-18 April 2012, Cambridge, UK 24-26 September 2012, Cambridge, UK Factor Analysis & Factor Models in Stata by Dr. Arnab Bhattacharjee 2-4 April 2012, London, UK 8-10 April 2012, Dubai, UAE	A practical guide to a number of microeconomic models and estimators. We focus on panel and count data models and examine models of discrete choice behaviour. Illustrated with real data examples and delivered using Stata. Factor analysis and factor models using Stata. Methodologies are discussed including principal factors, principal components, and dynamic factor models available in Stata 12.
OxMetrics	Oxford Econometrics Summer School Macroeconomic modelling forecasting & modelling volatility by Prof. Sir David F. Hendry, Dr. Jurgen A. Doornik and Dr. Sebastien Laurent 7-15 July 2012, Oxford University, UK	Our first Oxford Econometrics Summer School, comprising a series of short courses running consecutively. The courses will be delivered by Prof. Sir David F. Hendry, Dr. Jurgen A. Doornik and Dr. Sebastien Laurent, developers of OxMetrics software. Check our website for the latest news on our 2012 Econometric Summer Schools.
EViews	Time Series Analysis & Forecasting with EViews by Dr. Lorenzo Trapani June 2012, London, UK Macroeconomic Modelling and Forecasting by Prof. Sean Holly 16-23 July 2012, Summer School, Cambridge, UK	Exposition of all major issues a model builder needs to be aware of when dealing with time-series data. Reviews methodologies (traditional and modern), useful in analysing and forecasting time series data and demonstrates them using real life data in EViews. Covers the elements of economic theory and econometrics that are needed to construct a macroeconomic model that can be used for forecasting and for macroeconomic policy analysis. Topics will be covered including cointegration, macroeconomic forecasting, nowcasting and structural VARs.
Applied Economics	Modelling and Forecasting Exchange Rates by Prof. Lucio Sarno and Dr. Pasquale Della Corte 14-16 May 2012, Dubai UAE Econometric Modelling & Forecasting: Training Programme for Central Banks & Ministries of Finance by Prof. Sir David F. Hendry Summer 2012, Oxford, UK	Focus on economic models and econometric techniques that are useful in the context of exchange rates. The sessions will focus on ideas and theory, followed immediately by an application with data to show implementation of the idea or theory in practice. Real-world and worked examples will be demonstrated to delegates using EViews. Discusses the theory and practice of econometric modelling and forecasting in a non-stationary and evolving world, when the model and mechanism differ. The course has been designed for economic researchers in Central Banks and Ministries of Finance and provides hands-on experience in building econometric models using OxMetrics.
Medical Statistics	Introduction to Meta Analysis by Prof. Aurelio Tobias 21 June 2012, London, UK Introduction to Stata for Medical Statistics by Timothy Collier & Prof. Stephen Evans London, UK	Discusses and demonstrates the main issues related to Meta analysis using Stata. A detailed review and practical demonstration of popular statistical methods used in medical research.
Webinars	Stata Fundamentals by Dr. George Bagdatoglou Various dates: See our web site Essentials of Regression Analysis with EViews by Dr. George Bagdatoglou Various dates: See our web site	Introduces Stata's most popular and useful commands and procedures to import, manipulate, transform and manage data. Ideal for new or beginner level users who want to have a head-start and learn how to use Stata efficiently. The course focus on several issues and challenges frequently encountered when building regression models. It covers both the theory and practice of regression analysis, however, more emphasis is on the latter.

Consulting Services

If you have a specific task to hand and require project-specific assistance, we also provide expert consulting services. Our consulting services, which combines pioneering academic research with our in house expertise and management can help you:

- Choose the appropriate methodology
- Implement a methodology
- Interpret the findings
- Communicate the findings to the stakeholders
- Automate your processes
- Provide significant return on investment
